Fortnightly Nerds

A new house is under construction and the homeowners want a window built that lets in the most amount of light. A window in the front room is designed so that the bottom is a rectangle and the top is a semicircle. There is 12 meters of framing material available (all of it will be used, but no material will be used for the dotted line in the diagram). What must the dimensions of the window be to let in the most light? Please submit answers to room 1652.

Congratulations to Justin "Niko" Nichols, the winner of the last Fortnightly Nerds Rewards challenge!
